

LAWMANN, ANNE

Dr. Anne Laumann MBChB, MRCP(UK), FAAD
Associate Professor of Dermatology
a-laumann@northwestern.edu

I am primarily a medical dermatologist and an educator. My research interests include investigations into pruritus, nephrogenic systemic fibrosis, Raynaud's phenomenon, and the application of body art. She is the local principal investigator on a number of clinical trials related to wound care, new therapies for atopic dermatitis and psoriasis as well as the use of small pox vaccination in those with atopic dermatitis

Possible Summer research projects relate to any of the above issues and would have the full support of the Dermatology Clinical Trials Unit where supervision and training is provided in all aspects of human subjects research.

My work is all related to clinical science.

I have had many residents and trainees over the past five years including:

Dr. Amy Derrick
Dr. Mario Lacouture
Dr. Lucy White
Dr. Tarita Thomas
Dr. Sara Schramm

Most recently Elizabeth Wolf, 4th year medical student
Neelam Vashi, 4th year medical student
Nancy Ekeke, 4th.year medical student

Why do I want to be a mentor? It is intellectually rewarding and challenging to have an exchange of ideas and to guide while a thought out project is coming to fruition.
