Northwestern University Feinberg School of Medicine has excellent departments, centers, institutes, and programs that showcase the combined expertise of talented clinicians, researchers, and teachers at the school and our affiliated institutions. In July 2012, Feinberg enhanced its roster of unique offerings with the creation of the Institute for Public Health & Medicine, combining interdisciplinary research and educational programs that integrate public health and medical care approaches. Other programs with specialized areas of expertise include:

- Center for Genetic Medicine
- Robert H. Lurie Comprehensive Cancer Center of Northwestern University
- Institute for BioNanotechnology in Medicine
- Clinical and Translational Sciences Institute
