Enhanced Prognoses Could Help Lymphoma Patients

Northwestern Medicine scientists have developed a new prognostic tool for clinicians treating patients with large B-cell lymphoma. The scale improves upon the widely used International Prognostic Index. Read more >

Scientist Uncovers Selective Cell Death in Ataxia

A discovery by Marco Martina, MD, PhD, associate professor in Physiology, sheds new light on the selective vulnerability of cell types in preclinical models of ataxia. Read more >

Northwestern Medicine Works to Help Adults Suffering From Scoliosis

Northwestern Memorial is the only hospital in Illinois and one of nine total sites participating in a study of the disease that affects 6 to 9 million people in the country. The trial examines the impact of treatment including surgery and non-surgical options such as injections, medication, physical therapy and exercise. Read more >

Did you know?

Northwestern Medicine has seen more than 100 confirmed flu cases since January 4. Vaccination is the best defense against the flu. Get your shot today.
Northwestern Lake Forest Hospital Receives Echocardiography Certification

Accreditation followed a rigorous review process that examined the operational and technical components of the hospital's program. Read more >